

FROM PEGGY TO POLLY.

Dear Old Polly: "Turkey Day" it is the morning, and yours truly is most starved. Honest to goodness, dear, really wouldn't be writing to you if I didn't just simply have to do some thing to divert my mind from those glorious smells coming from the region of the kitchen. We have been actually starved for a week and today I believe, "honorable chef" is making up for it. Here's hoping, anyhow!

Later: Just as I had finished the paragraph, one of the girls called me into her room and I listened to the usual run of gossip. "— is rushing around so," and "Did you know that Lieut. Cohen (Dutch, they call him) is an ex-football star?" "Fred O. has wonderfully expressive eyes and do you like the way Mabel does her hair?" And then the bell rang and it took us about two hours to eat dinner. That is, to get seated and carve and then eat. It seems to me that the eating was the smallest part of it! I didn't know that they'd dare sell such an excuse for a turkey. Had it been April they all would have seen the joke and not bothered about it, but no, sir! Each one, as he watched the head of the house vigorously sticking his carving into that poor bird's sides, or trying to, thought it purely imagination. But—we all used the Fletcher system for once, anyway. I guess I won't be telling you any more about the dinner, dear, for every time I think of it my Irish disposition begins to show and that's not good for anyone.

After dinner we all went over to the football game, which was really a very good one. I admire a lot of school spirit in the youngsters. But, Polly, it didn't know anything about football I'd either not go or when I did go I'd not display my ignorance as do some people. Here's a conversation between male and female sitting just ahead of me yesterday:

Mabel—John, just look at that man. He's got the ball and o—o—o—
John—Watch, yella! for, that's Kam's man and Kam's ball!
Mabel (quite squashed)—Well, everyone else on the other side was making a noise and I thought it was ours, anyway. Did you see that big man. Isn't he mean, he took the ball right away from the cute little fellow with the lovely hair.

— meaning silence or thought, if possible.
End of first half. Mabel again—Look, they've stopped. Is it all over? How unhealthy! they're all drinking of the dirty water in that bucket, and from a sponge.

John grunts—that's all he can do.
Again—Look, they're all tumbled together again! They're always doing that. Why, John?

John—Well, you see, they are trying to rub the faces of the men from the opposing team in the mud. The officer they do it the more sure they are of winning the game.

Mabel—How dreadful. It is very brutal and not fit for a lady. I'm going home at once.

And with that she left the stand and Ber Johnny had a chance to enjoy what was a real football game.

After supper, the crowd, I mean the school children, went down town together, after having reserved 200 seats at the Bijou. They serpentine the streets, finally rounding up there. They had a lively time, throwing streamers at the actors and yelling their cheers. But I must tell you something funny about it. Punahou had reserved the whole section and the first and second rows were for the members of the team. There are two "Johnnies" who sit every night in the first row and when they came in they found their seats taken by two huskies wearing the blue and gold. Really, surprising as it may seem, they went back to the manager and created such a fuss that they were given their regular seats in the baldheaded row. They are well-known men about town, too.

I was reading the other day about a new fad, and quite a popular one, too. It is that of giving girls a progressive rope of pearls. Some one starts it, giving a little girl, say, one or two, and then everyone on the many gift days add to the collection one or two whole pearls. These can be gotten at a very reasonable price and by the time the girl is ready to wed she has a rope of pearls. Isn't that lovely?

There are some well-to-do people here staying at one of the popular beach resorts. They have with them two very bright children and having traveled extensively throughout Europe the youngsters are smarter than is usual. The other day, mamma was starting over to tea to meet a lady, and her six-year-old son said that he should go, too. That was very well, but he must change his suit.

"Change my clothes, mother?"

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 27.—Miss Hope Truxton Peale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Peale, will be married to Mr. Oliver Faxon Cromwell, son of Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, tomorrow in St. James' Church, Philadelphia. The ceremony will be performed at noon, and a wedding breakfast and reception will follow at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Peale, 100 South 22nd street, Philadelphia. The bride's attendants will be Miss Grace D. Pierce, daughter of Mrs. William D. Pierce of Oyster Bay; Miss Eugenia Kelso Casatt, Miss Eleanor de Graaf Cuyler, Miss Mary Wood Bailey and Miss Harriet G. H. Gevelin of Philadelphia and Miss Frances Hunter of Providence.

James Henry H. Cromwell will be his brother's best man. The ushers will be Prall Bird, John Hemphill of Washington, Walter Brooks, Jr. of Baltimore; Leonard Truxton Peale, a brother of the bride; J. Kearney Mitchell, 3rd, and Charles S. Hoffman of Philadelphia.

Mr. Cromwell is a son of the late Oliver Cromwell of this city.

An interesting wedding took place at 11 o'clock this morning at the rectory of St. Paul's church, when Miss Mildred Elizabeth Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Martin, and Ensign Robert Eustace Pack, U. S. N., were married in the presence of a small family party by Mr. Mackin.

The bride wore a smart traveling suit of hunter's green broadcloth, trimmed with fur, with a velvet hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Marian Will was the bride's only attendant, and she wore a blue broadcloth suit with hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of violets.

Ensign Packdock and his bride left immediately after the ceremony for their wedding trip. They will visit relatives in Michigan before going to Norfolk, where Mr. Packdock's ship, the U. S. S. New Hampshire, is stationed.

The marriage of Miss Adele Magruder, daughter of Capt. Thomas P. Magruder, U. S. N., and Mrs. Magruder, and Lieut. Stuart O. Greig, U. S. N., will take place at noon, November 17, at the home of the bride's parents at Newport, R. I.

The bride's attendants will include Miss Barbara Bishop of Philadelphia and Miss Katherine G. Knight, daughter of Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight, U. S. N.

Mrs. Joseph R. Wilson and Miss Alice Wilson, sister-in-law and niece of President Wilson, left Baltimore yesterday for Tennessee, where they will spend some time visiting relatives and where they will be joined next week by Mr. Wilson.

Miss Desha Allen, whose marriage to Lieut. Joseph Viner, U. S. A., will take place at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., November 18, is with her aunt, Mrs. T. C. Dix, at Stoneleigh Court.

Admiral and Mrs. Edward H. Green and the Misses Green, who spent the summer at Newport, have returned to their home on New Hampshire avenue for the winter.

Admiral and Mrs. Albert G. Winterhalter and Miss Eliza Seidmore are in Kio, Japan, to attend the coronation ceremony of Emperor Yoshihito.

FRENCH FAMOUS PLAYERS A HIT

The photo-drama running at the Popular theater as the feature offering is entitled "The Monster and the Girl." This moving picture is presented by the Famous Players Company of France, a combination of stars of the silent stage which has been established in Paris for a number of years and which occupies the same place in the photo-dramatic world of Europe as that held by the Famous Players of America.

"The Monster and the Girl" is a thrilling story. During the progress of the picture a ship at sea is destroyed by fire and there is a bank robbery and a sensational chase by a posse of policemen after the bandits. The story deals with a boy and girl, the daughter of a fisherman, who learn to love each other in childhood, and a great fortune that is stolen from the boy and years afterwards, when he and the girl have grown up, is restored to him.

This clever picture was shown today at the matinee and will be repeated tonight. Other pictures are as follows: "A Rude Awakening," a comedy; "Old Enough to Be Her Grandfather," another funny picture, and "The Floating Call," a newspaper drama.

Over 70,000 tons of structural steel were placed by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Co. The steel will be used for improvements on the system.
